

The Tuscany Photo Storytelling Retreat with Sabrina Tosato and Andrea Livieri 1 to 5 June 2022 (in English)

When it comes to picking a traveling companion, you can't beat a camera. Whether we pack a big bag of sophisticated equipment or stick to our smartphone, the photographs we bring back from a trip will be among our most impactful and lasting souvenirs. But, what are the key ingredients of a compelling picture? What makes the difference between a random stack of photos and a cohesive narrative that not only captures the place we're visiting but our experience of being there? Is it our equipment? Our editing skills? The composition? The beauty of our subject? All of these things play an important role when it comes to photography, but they are not enough.

« The secret behind compelling images is the stories they tell. »

Photographically speaking, storytelling is being intentional about each picture we take, then looking at it critically to see if it fits the narrative, captures our experience of a place, and has the potential to resonate with our viewers. In other words, documenting a trip is less about location photos and more about our journey.

The aim of this 5-day Photo Storytelling Retreat is to learn how to create impactful photographs using a tried and tested system that puts the story at the heart of everything we do. Sabrina (@brina_too) and Andrea (@andrealivieriphoto) will teach you how to take still images and put them together in a narrative reflecting an experience, a place, an encounter, or anything else that interests or intrigues you. You will start with the basics, going through the entire process of making a great photograph: from the concept to shooting, equipment, editing, and image selection. Then, you'll examine the craft of storytelling, as it applies to photography, and how to put together a captivating narrative.

During the retreat, you will explore and photograph some of the most iconic landscapes and villages of Southern Tuscany. You will be guided through unique activities tailored to work on growing your receptiveness and aptitude for storytelling. Experiencing the entire retreat in a small group will allow for highly personal, individual, and peer-to-peer feedback.

The art of storytelling in photography can be utilized by a wide range of photographers. Whether you're an amateur or a photo enthusiast, this storytelling retreat experience is equally valuable for you.

What you will gain from this retreat:

- Increased creativity and motivation for photography
- Insight into a variety of photographic genres that come into play in storytelling
- Class lessons on composition and photo editing
- Novel and stimulating ways of thinking, seeing, and doing things
- Meeting and exchanging with people with similar interests and passions

- Inspiration and fun while learning
- An opportunity to thoroughly understand, ask questions and receive answers.
